

'Ulupalakua

Kaulana mai nei

A'o 'Ulupalakua

The 'īnikiniki ahiahi

Ka home a'o paniolo

Renowned indeed Is 'Ulupalakua Where evenings bring a tingle The home of the cowboys

He wehi e kuʻu lei
Aʻo ʻUlupalakua
Onaona me ka ʻawapuhi
to He beauty maoli nō

You are an adornment, my dear one Land of 'Ulupalakua Redolent with ginger A true thing of beauty

Haʻina mai ka puana
Aʻo ʻUlupalakua
The ʻīnikiniki ahiahi
C⁷
Ka home aʻo paniolo

Tell then the refrain Of 'Ulupalakua Where evenings bring a tingle The home of cowboys

John Pi'ilani Watkins wrote this song about the beautiful 'Ulupalakua Ranch and its cowboys in the 1940s. There are not as many paniolo songs as might be expected, when one considers what an attractive and romantic subject the Hawaiian cowboy is.
